Singapura ficou em quarto lugar entre os centros financeiros do mundo no Global Financial Centres Index de setembro de 2026, um ponto atrás de Hong Kong e à frente de Dubai, Zurique e Genebra, posição que reflete tanto sua força geral quanto as margens estreitas no topo do índice. Hong Kong continua sendo sua rival mais próxima, graças a seu acesso único ao capital e ao patrimônio da China continental, que a tornou o maior centro de patrimônio transfronteiriço em 2025, enquanto Singapura oferece uma base de clientes mais diversificada e a independência de um Estado soberano. Dubai e Abu Dhabi concorrem com zonas francas de common law, tributação baixa e uma política ativa de atração de patrimônio, embora a inclusão na lista cinzenta de 2022 a 2024 e a guerra regional de 2026 tenham exposto os limites de seu modelo. Londres continua sendo o modelo e o maior mercado de câmbio, com Singapura em terceiro lugar, e os dois centros combinam a concorrência nos negócios asiáticos com uma estreita cooperação em matéria de regulação desde sua Financial Partnership de 2021. Zurique e Genebra continuam sendo as referências
